THE ANNUAL MAY DAY SCARE IN WESTERN EUROPE.

Precautions Being Taken by the Military Authorities to Suppress Outbreak:

English Liberals Said to be Growing Lukewarm in the Cause of Irish Home Rule.

In Italy Baron Nicotra has issed a circular to the perfects prohibiting organized processions in connection with the 1st of May demonstration. The circular does not meet with approval in the Italian press, being considered more likely to create than to prevent disorders. Baron Nicotra says the precaution is not taken against the real laboring classes, but against the Anarchists, who are always active on these occasions, and that the police will not interfere with the meetings of the workingmen unless the utterances tend to disorder.

meet with approval in the Italian press, being considered more likely to create than to prevent disorders. Baron Nicotras says the precantion is not taken against the Anarchists, who are always active on these occasions, and that the police will not interfere with the meetings of the workingmen unless the utterances tend to disorder.

The probability of dangerous agitation in Brussels on May 1 is somewhat lessened by the action of the central committee of the chamber in adopting for recommendation a radical extension of frauchise. The qualification for the parliamentary franchise is fixed at the age of 25 and the payment of 10 francs a year in direct taxes. This franchise has heretofore been confined to those paying 42 frances a year and direct taxes, while the provincial franchise requires 62 francs and the commutal of 52 francs annually. While the reformed franchise, as proposed, would not be the universal suffrage demanded by the working classes who have settled habitations.

For various reasons there is little danger of an agressive demonstration among the intelligent workmen of the cipies. But among the Westphalian miners there is a difficult and dangerous spirit, which the moderate socialists are striving, so far in vain, to keep down. The police and military are guarding Boehum and other points in the mining district in great force, and if the day should mass without bloodshed the mining district in great force, and if the day should pass without bloodshed the German public will be agreeably sur-

Disorder may be looked for in Barcelona

Disorder may be looked for in Barcelona Disorder may be looked for in Barcelona and other Spanish industrial towns. The Barcelona labor agitator is fast acquiring a reputation as the most dangerous of the population as the most dangerous of the Moor and the physique of the Basque, with the courage that is the heritage of the poorest Spaniard. The eight hour movement, with universal acceptance, prevails among the Spanish, and on this the government bases hope of a quiet Monday. But the workmen are determined to parade irrespective of any principle at stake, and the recent encounters in Barcelona have caused a feeling of intense animosity against the police and the authorities generally. The garrison has been largely reconst the British troops, and reports that the troopers found the country sent for ward on a reconnaissance has rejoined the main body of the British troops, and reports that the troopers found the country large ports that the troopers found the country large provides the main body of the British troops, and reports that the troopers found the country large provides the main body of the British troops are now within ten miles of Imphal, the capital of erally. The garrison has been largely re-inforced within the past few days, and if there should be a rising, it will be vigor-ously met. What Spanish workingmen most want is an increase of wages rather than a shortening of hours, even the late attempt to legislate against Sunday labor has aroused but little sympathy among the industrial classes. It should be remembered, also, that in Spain there is a power-following that the state of t ful revolutionary propagands, which has its field and support among the working people. But for the influence of the church, the government could hardly stand a day against the republican senti-ment which pervades the lower and middle ranks, and the clergy, true to their con-

LONDON, April 27.—The general political outlook here is growing extremely interesting. The last three elections disclosed so uniform an increase in the Tory strength that the opinion is becoming general that a Tory reaction is impending. The radicals allowed in the suite of the Liberal party is in the suite. They declare that the White Haven election shows that matters have come to a critics and that the Liberal party in the suite of the control of the control of the liberal party in the suite of the control of the secretary directing that agriculture, in the course of his reply, said that the testing from contagions disease.

party will go forward with more advanced principles.

The split in the Irish party is having the effect of dampening the enthusiasm of the Liberals aroused over the labors of Gladstone and the Irishmen of the last four years. Three elections are still pending, which the Liberals should win if they are to reach the high water mark. The Liberals expect to win only one of these. Unless it is a signal triumph Salisbury will probably be forced to dissolve parliament in June. The feeling is finding emphatic expression among the Liberals that unless Irish dissensions are healed quickly home rule will be erased from the Liberal program. The Liberals are possessed of the conviction that the Irish question is losing its hold. A strong effort will be made at the approaching caucus to definitely assign home rule to a secondary position on the Liberal program and to push to the front the labor question.
